The largest international oceanographic experiment of its kind will be carried out over a 10-year period at a cost of $10 million in Saanich Inlet.

Prof. T. R. Parsons of the University of British Columbia's institute of oceanogra-phy, announced today that, although the project will be in full swing early in 1974, preliminary tes taking place. testing is already

The project, aimed at studying the effects of low levels of pollution on marine life, was stalled earlier this year when federal department of fisheries insisted on studying the program before permitting a go-ahead.

Parsons, spokesman for the Controlled Ecosystem Pollution Experiment, explained funds" came from the Na-tional Science Foundation of Washington, D.C.

Taking part in the program will be UBC, the Skidaway Oceanographic Institute of the University of Georgia, the Marine Laboratory of Aber-deen in Scotland, the Woods Oceanographic Institution of Massachusetts, the Scripps Institution of Ocean ography in California and the University of Miami.

OTTAWA - Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday that with Canada experiencing serious inflation and mounting unemployment there is "no way" his party would agree to an adjournment of Parliament this week.

There have been "feelers" put out by government representatives to determine if the opposition and the New Democratic and Social Credit parties would go along with a motion to adjourn Thursday. The party House leaders met today to consider the question. The Liberal party holds its convention in Ottawa Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the question of the serious inflation now facing the country will be debated by the Liberal delegates. In addition the convention will be called upon to endorse the leadership of the prime minister.

SALMON ARM - Residents of this largely resort town of about 2,000 watched helplessly today as wind swept fire down on homes and farms.

The fire began Tuesday afternoon when a slash burning authorized by the provincial forestry department was whipped out of control by winds which gusted to more than 50 m.p.h.

A Vancouver forestry official said the logging firm Federated Co-Operatives had been authorized to start the burning in the slash - timber debris left after logging.

Other parties in Allende's six-member coalition, whether professedly Marxist or not, accepted for the 1970 election planks as: nationalization of foreign copper and other mineral holdings, replacement of the bicameral congress with a "people's assembly" including labor union representation, sweeping redistribution of income, and institution of expensive social welfare programs.

The largest single party, the Christian Democrats, had begun programs nearly as broad between 1964 and 1970: an agrarian reform to eliminate big land holdings, a start at state takeover of the key copper sector that was then foreign-owned, formation of pressure groups among organization of the peasants

But the absolute majority that voted Frei into office soon showed-in byelectionsa resurging discontent. For the fateful 1970 presidential election, the party chose onetime Ambassador to Washington Radomior Tomic as its condidate.

The Land of Might-Have-Been

Although Conservative Leader Stanfield is still vigorous in deand emphatic in asserting that it of the year in Parliament. should be thrown out of office immediately, the hard political fact is that he and his party have suffered a slow but inexorable psychological erosion since they entered Parliament last January only two seats behind Mr. Trudeau's forces.

The election had put Mr. Stanfield so near to office that there were even suggestions that he should be given it without further delay. Certainly it was widely believed that a quick election would see him firmly ensconced in the East Block, and this belief held as the days lengthened into weeks and the weeks into a month or

But subtly the feeling changed, and although the Liberals have failed to garner any noticeable additional strength in any part of the country, the prospective mantle has slowly slipped from Mr. Stanfield's twitching shoulders. NDP Leader Lewis has stolen the spotlight on the left side of Mr. Speaker, and although he has not won universal acclaim - either outside his party or within it - for his role as a part of Her Majesty's overly loyal opposition, he has cernouncing the Liberal government tainly emerged as the action man

> The irony of the situation is that, while Mr. Stanfield could have used such kudos to lever himself into the prime ministership, the hard-earned fame is largely wasted on Mr. Lewis, for thechances of an NDP government in Ottawa are far from bright.

> Somewhere, Mr. Stanfield missed the boat. His tactics from the beginning seemed logical enough. He would assail the government at every point and try to bring it down, and so show himself as an energetic contender for office. Apart, perhaps, from a temporary concern not to precipitate another election too soon on a pollweary public, the big thing was to defeat Mr. Trudeau and either be called to take office by the Governor-General, or make up the miniscule deficit of seats by an appeal to the country.

To Mr. Lewis naturally fell the balance-of-power position. He could choose to support the Conservatives on a vote of confidence and defeat the government; or he could support the government, exert a heavy influence on its policymaking, maintain it in power and keep his own party in its heady role, if not of king-maker, at least of king-guider.

What must be worrying Mr. Stanfield now, during long frustrated evenings, is the thought that perhaps he should have assumed the balance-of-power role himself at an early date and edged Mr. Lewis out of the picture. He could have supported the Liberals in office, exerted his influence on the legislation and won credit for it, kept the government under the constant threat of sudden withdrawal of his support, and tried to demonstrate to the country that, given the full powers of a government leader, instead of merely the partial powers of his unique position, he could provide a good administration. Then he would have been ready for an election campaign, and very probably a successful one.

As it is, Mr. Stanfield is in no better position than he was when he had only 73 seats in the House. He has pointed out flaws in the government, but he has not been able to come through to the public as the man with the answers. He does not shine as the alternative to Mr. Trudeau. And those two missing seats now might as well be 20.

"... Harold, do you think anyone would dare to spoil OUR environment ... deliberately ...?"

Laying the Blame

The poor, as everyone should know, make up the majority of the voters in any country. It follows, therefore, that the government (the Members of Parliament) are elected mainly by the poor, if the poor take the trouble to go out and vote on election day. Like most of you, I belong to the working class, I am a poor man, not of the middle class or of the wealthy class.

When the present government was electioneering, asking a mandate, to govern this country, our beloved Canada, their avowed intention, loudly proclaimed on every possible occasion, was to help the working class and those, still worse off, who could not work because of old age or other handicap.

The voices of those seeking political power were loud, strong, and clear:

We are the working class party, the poor people's party. We will see to it that you will not lose any part of your hardearned savings; we want to see you all happy, to see you all enjoy your declining years; we want to see you owning your own homes, and if you do not now do so it is our most earnest wish to see every Canadian enjoying this privilege.

Many Canadians who had but small means, and who had bought older properties, had been obliged to borrow money each time the house needed a big repair job. Almost as soon as the present Liberal Party took office the mortgage rates went up from 5 or 6 per cent to 10 or 12 per cent and those unfortunate people had to regretfully sell their homes; and that situation still exists today.

Another great help for the poor; when a raise is to be made in the Old Age Security pension it is announced several months ahead. By the time the cheques arrive all the department stores, all the supermarkets, all merchants, have several months in which to raise their and they certainly do. There is no benefit to the poor at all.

When the prime minister and the Members of Parliament are granted a raise it is effective at once, and remember each one of those persons has additional income from an enterprise or investments, which we do not. Another beautiful point: when the dear poor receive their cheques for the month Sept., for example, it is already the 27th or 29th of the month. The whole situation is slimy, indecent, immoral, and scandalous: - James Hogan, 1009 Monterey

Poverty

Here are some statistics from a re-cent United States Senate study that shows widespread poverty among workers over 65:

"Start with 100 men aged 25...40 years later one will have $10,000 or more; four will have $2,000 to $4,000: five, with little or nothing saved, will be still working; 54 will be dependent on article itself:

relatives, friends, or charity; 36 will be dead.'

The concluding statement in the Senate study reveals: "Fewer men are worth $100 at age 68 than at 18-after 50 years of hard work." These are startling figures, to say the least. Even the man with the ten grand or more is not secure if a prolonged terminal illness strikes.

All this confirms the position of the Socialist Labor Party. As long as capitalism prevails, the workers will remain subject to all the hardships of wage slavery in contrast to the few billionaires who enjoy a life of affluence because they are the owners of the means of life. -Nathan Pressman, 12 Catherine Street: Ellenville, New York: U.S.A

Canadianization

Americanization is the extension to non-American nations of the social practice and ideology of the United States. If nothing else, it is an expression of that country's immense cultural and economic power. Canadians can only be discomforted that no such interpretation will fit the word "Canadianization", by which the international community has come to mean the loss of a people's economic and cultural autonomy on so severe a scale that it approaches the extent of Canada's loss of them. Canadianization therefore is a paradigm of national fail-

Hardly a more vivid example of our Canadianization could be found than in the public's opinion of the French Navy's attack upon the captain and crew of Greenpeace III. Here is an act entirely without subtlety or complication. There is at present no reason to doubt that the Republic of France authorized and commissioned an act of piracy upon Canadian citizens and their property. In boarding the Greenpeace III and in laying hold of and attacking her crew. France violated the legal protection of international waters. In doing this so openly she showed her contempt of

Yet in the streets, offices and marketplaces, Canadians agitate with one another about the price of cauliflower or the wickedness of Watergate. They do not speak of David McTaggart. The media tear-and-print from the wire services perfunctory accounts riddled with caution: it was a "scuffle" and captain McTaggart is "alleging" certain things, and so on. (The Times' recent editorial is a welcome exception to this point.)

In their indifference to the political meaning of France's action, it is apparent that Canadians are invisible to themselves, and that unwittingly they intensify their own Canadianization. David McTaggart could be forgiven had he called out, "Canadians, where were you then? Where are you now?"- John Woods, Professor of Philosophy, University of Victoria.

On Saturday, Sept. 1, the Times published a report headlined "Hearing Aid Salesmen Need Training", a CP release from Halifax.

In general what was said was correct. However, I feel that it would be fair to point out that all B.C. hearing aid dealers and consultants have been licenced and registered since January, 1972, under an act passed by the provincial government. The initiation for this action came originally from the dealers and consultants themselves.

In 1973, before our licences were renewed we were required to pass the National Hearing Aid Society course and attend a week-long intensive course at the B.C. Institute of Technology at our own expense.

The public is now protected through the activities of the Board of Hearing Aid Dealers and Consultants composed of physicians, audiologists, civil servants and two hearing aid dealers and consul-Gesundheit!

In your column, "Ask The Times", you discuss the origin of the saying 'Bless you' when someone sneezes. The tradition I learned is different.

In the Middle Ages "to bless" meant "to protect". Sneezing was supposed to indicate that the Devil or one of his servants was nearby. Sneezing was also one of symptoms of the dreaded plague. It is part of the children's song, "Ring a ring o' roses'" which describes the plague from onset to death. When someone sneezed, you immediately said "God Bless You!" in an attempt to save him from the Devil or the plague. Mrs. Aileen E. Gentles, 874 Hotham Crescent.

A severe blow is believed to have been given to the traffic in cocaine and other drugs of that class by the conviction of Chun Dow in the police court this morning. The old man, enfeebled by his devotion to the stimulant, was lightly dealt with when he was, last before the magistrate on account of his state of health, but the leniency does not seem to have been appreciated by him. He has maintained his position as one of the chief sources of supply for whites and Chinese who are in the "snowbird" class, and the seizure of 40 small packets demonstrated the excellence of his business. He was fined $50 and $2.50 costs or the alternative of three months in jail.

Strata Titles Act simply passed the conversion buck to municipalities.

Considering the other recreational uses to which this area caters, the Regional District should ban all shooting in the park and see that it is enforced. Parks and guns are not compatible and live wild animals are as important to the park as the beaches and scenic views.

On the other hand councils hear howls of rage from tenants who are told to buy or get out. But moratoriums by any other name are not going to solve the basic problem. Rather than shelving the issue through ad hoc laws, municipalities are going to have to grapple with a whole new series of rules and regulations regarding conversions and new condominiums. Mayor Peter Pollen's suggestion that the planning and engineering departments draft special design and construction standards for new condominium developments is a step towards controlling the trend. Perhaps a provincewide standard could be achieved by pooling municipal ideas and formulating standards through the Union of British Columbia Municipalities. The alternative is spotty legislation in various municipalities that could be a nightmare for developers, the courts and condominium owners.

Fatal Flaws in the Critics

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. - Once again this past week, the world's nonaligned countries - embracing one-third of the world's population - climbed on a soap box and sought to make their grievances heard. Presidents, prime ministers and others from more than 70 countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America met in Algeria to put their case before the world.

But it was a futile effort from the start. The rest of the world was just not interested.

This fact is deeply disturbing and frustrating to the men involved. It could also be dangerous. A man with a grievace who cannot get anyone to listen may be tempted to use violence to command an audience - as, indeed, the Palestinian guerrillas are already doing in the Mideast, and the Africans in southern Africa.

It is not that the "third world" does not have anything to say. Agree with it or not, it has a case to argue.

Taking Reprisals

Arabs, outraged at the United States for maintaining Israel's military (and hence diplomatic) superiority, are threatening - and taking - reprisals against American oil companies and supplies. In Algiers this past week, the Arabs have been seeking moral support for this action. Africans are dismayed at the West's refusal to help them substitute majority rule for oppressive white supremacy in southern Africa, notably (at the moment) Rhodesia. They feel they are struggling for basic human rights, and see western indifference as a remnant of racism. Much of the non-aligned world is non-white.

· Virtually all the smaller countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America have been losing their battle against poverty, hunger, ignorance and disease, and are bitter at the scant help - less than one per cent of the gross national from the richer countries of the world. They have been trying to appeal to the conscience of the rich.

All of these plaints are deeply felt, and some are indisputably legitimate. Yet the Algiers parley has made scarcely a ripple on the world scene. It has produced a lot more whimper than bang. Measured by its effect on the industrialized world, it might almost as well not have happened

Terrorists Not Mentioned

It therefore is worth asking why onethird of the world is so strikingly unsuccessful in its public relations.

One reason is that the "third world" is not believably non-aligned. It has sacrificed objectivity, and therefore credibility, by focussing on the shortcomings of the western world and blinking at the misdeeds of the East, whose support it cultivates (and sometimes gets). This may or may not be-hard-nosed a basis on which to appeal successfully to the conscience of the world. Machiavelli and high principle do not readily

The non-aligned world is still, to a considerable extent, beating horses that are long-since dead: colonialism, imperialism, exploitation. Such words have little persuasive power for a western audience; in uttering them, the nonaligned are very largely speaking to themselves.

They also have devalued the currency of their complaints by overstatement, by interminable repetition, and by forcing the passage - as they are able, by sheer numbers, to do - of UN resolutions embodying patently overstated and impractical propositions.

Even when the world's angry men have a strong case - as against apartheid in South Africa - they let themselves be caught in a vicious circle of shouting ever more stridently to awaken an ever more indifferent and unbelieving audience.

Short-Comings

The non-aligned world also has the fault, common to much of mankind but still fatal in one who seeks credibility, of refusing to acknowledge one's own short-

Little has been heard at Algiers of terrorism by Palestinians, expulsions from Uganda, mass killings in Burundi, Nigeria and Bangladesh, or trading by Africans with Rhodesia.

As Prof. Stephen M. Schwebel of Johns Hopkins has put it: "If the 'third world' seems to care not about its inhumanity to man, but only about the West's inhumanity to man, will that minority in the West who care at all sustain their humanistic commitment?"

The answer is that it will not - and even if it did, the majority in the West would long since have stopped listening.

In recent years the problem has been compounded by the taste for self-expression and power acquired by millions of Red Guards during the brief period in the late 1960s when they were granted licence to rebel against all authority only to find, when the upeaval was over, that the old restraints were imposed more tightly than ever.

It was against this background that the Communist party, at its recent 10th national congress, took the un-precedented step of naming to its highest councils a man who is still in his thirties. But it seems clear that his meteoric rise to the third spot in the hierar-chy, after Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-Jai, owes much to the party's eagerness to demonstrate that its councils are no longer the exclusive preserve of the old warhorses of the revolution.

On Rampage

Encouraged by Mao's invitation to "bombard the headquarters," millions of young people went on a rampage, destroying his enemies and leaving the party in tatters.

Thus were born the Red Guards, young men and women who had never before known that it was to roam the country, to express their ideas freely and to defy the authori-

The yearning for the days when to be a young with a red band on your arm was to be someone to be reckoned with did not die when Mao decided that his young rebels required tempering in the countryside - and promptly ordered millions of them to abandon the cities for a life of toil and hardship among the peasants. The fate of the young people - 20 million of them by unofficial estimate - has been cerns since the Cultural Revo-

Newspapers have never ceased to chronicle the success and happiness they have found down on the farm, cap-suling their experience beneath such arresting head-lines as "Happy to Collect "Learn to Operate the Pneumatic Hammer for the Revo-like what they found when they got there. Bad attitudes flourished, such as: "I've come to the countryside to achieve something, but what possible future is there in collecting nightsoil?"

But in the end right-thinking always triumphed, with parents and children alike coming to see the truth of Mao's doctrine that any task is noble and fulfilling, however humble, if it serves the revolution.

To skeptics the very volume of the propaganda put forth to explain and endorse the resettlement policy suggested that dissatisfaction among the settlers was a major porblem. To some extent this view was made by former Red Guards who fled as refugees to Hong Kong, explaining that what they were fleeing was not communism itself, but the boredom and disillusionment of life on the commune.

It was probably no coincidence that the party's main organs accompanied their barrage of support for the resettlement policy with stories and commentaries lauding efforts to bring new blood into the party and to resuscitate its junior partner, the Young

Apparently there was more to the stories in the press than political puffery, for the communique issued after the congress last week revealed munique that the party's ranks have been swelled by more than 8 million in the past few years, up from the 20 million who were members before the Cul-Revolution. Many of these, the communique made clear, were young people including, apparently, large numbers of educated youngsters who have settled among the peasants.

Youth Bloc

A bloc of these young people were delegates to the congress and a handful of them even made it to the new central committee, nominally the sovereign body of the party between congresses. This in itself was precedentshattering, but even those who had foreseen a youth bloc on the committee had not pre-dicted that a man still in his youth, a factory worker until only seven years ago, would be installed as the party's Chou are grooming him to inherit their mantles when they pass from the scene, but this seems too simple a view. But it may be a long time before he has the kind of political standing in his own right that would give him first claim to the succession. In the meantime he will play a role of enormous symbolic imporsured by a remark alleged to have been made by Hussein esh-Shafei, the Egyptian Vice-President, accusing Moscow of colluding with the United States in bringing about the Arab defeat by Israel in 1967. There has been angry sur-prise at this kind of imputation in Moscow.

Relations between the two countries have not been nor-mal ever since the Egyptians threw out the Soviet military personnel in the summer of 1972. On the surface, Moscow has maintained that relations have continued as before and Soviet support for Egypt has remained unchanged in international forums. But President Sadat is annoyed that, despite repeated invitations, the Soviet Communist leader it has to do with pride and prejudice at the top rather than any substantive political issues. But the extent of this ed to come to Moscow. More-over, he declined to receive Cairo when the Soviet Government wanted to send him there to discuss the Middle East situation before Brezhnev's visit to Washington in

> The Egyptians are even more angry at rumors about Brezhnev's impending visit to India, though nothing is cer-tain yet. This is being taken by Cairo as a calculated snub.

> Matters have not been improved by the release in Cairo of a joint paper by the Egyptian National Assembly and the Arab Socialist Union Central Committee which has charged the Soviet Union with making major concessions to the United States at the expense of the Arabs.

Thus, President Sadat may go ahead and abrogate the treaty out of pique and brava-do, with incalculable consequences to Egypt and the Soposition in the region. The Russians feel that Sadat may think over the matter in after the departure of Soviet military personnel, when he had to ask them back in dislittle doubt that if the treaty is abrogated, Soviet reaction

On other hand, it is recognized here that the Egyptian leader is desperate to continue giv-ing the impression of great activity, and turning on the Russians may be the easiest possible alternative for him for the moment. Attention Telephone Customers

OVERTIME DISPUTE CAUSES SERVICE DELAYS

B.C. Telephone advises its customers that some installation and repair services are being temporarily curtailed due to an unprecedented demand for service and a continuing ban on overtime work by the Federation of Telephone Workers.

Although B.C. Tel has increased its outside work force by more than 300 employees so far this year, the union's actions have hindered our efforts to meet customer demands.

Every effort is being made to return service to normal as quickly as possible.

In the meantime, the company must give priority to installations of new residential and business telephones, transfer of telephones for people who are moving and out-of-service repairs.

Services such as installation of extension telephones, changes in party line status, relocation of telephones and addition of optional equipment are being reduced to a minimum for the time being.

B.C. Tel greatly regrets the inconvenience caused its customers and asks for their co-operation during this difficult period.

ONLY A FONDUE MEMORY

camp for the year, I set aside a few newspapers for the spring. You can question the value of the press as the Fourth Estate in our great democratic system, but there is no doubt that news-papers are an essential inventory item

They are used for lighting fires, wrapping fish, and for cleaning the chimneys of coal oil lamps. They protect the porch when we repaint the ice box. We put them over the bed springs to keep the mattresses free of rust

And beyond the obvious practical uses of old newspapers, there are real aesthetic pleasures and intellectual exitements to be found in these yellowing piles of newsprint. For instance, last week, while sit-ting in the sun, I learned the results of the 1968 Canadian Open Golf Tour-nament. Then I read a column which explained how Hubert Humphrey would defeat Richard Nixon. And then, buried deep among the ads for acne ointment, and next to the table of soybean prices, I found this gem, which I pass along to man showed up at a hospital Friday night with a fondue fork sticking out of his palm. He said he had tried to stab his meat and stuck the hooked fork into his hand. Doctors cut out the fork, bandaged the hand and sent the embar-rassed diner back to his fondue."

Now this is the kind of story that you might miss in a normal evening's run through the paper. And it leaves so much unexplained.

To begin with — the victim is unidentified. Why? Was he a very important person with drag at the paper? Perhaps a heavy buyer of advertising? Or the nephew of the publisher? Or the

And what sort of man was this? There are clues. Undoubtedly he was a man of violent habits. Imagine that arm — raised high above the fondue pot — the fist clenched around the fork. Imagine the intense eyes glaring at the boiling oil. And then the sudden stroke! To dine with such a man would take erves of steel.

But wait — he missed the meat and drove the fork into his palm! How could this be? He must have missed the pot by a good 10 inches, in order to stab himself in the hand. If this was an accident then the man must have had appallingly bad muscular co-ordination. Somehow it doesn't fit.

So what are the alternatives? Was there a woman in the case? Perhaps he was quietly cooking his fondue with one hand while fondly patting the lady's knee with the other. She resists his advances! He persists. She panics and, in quite justified self-defence spears him in the palm. If this scenario is correct, he is lucky he only got it in the hand. Perhaps she was the publisher's niece!

Or was the wound self-inflicted? Did the fondue party come at a time of maximum stress for this man? Fondue eating is competitive — people often knock meat off each others forks. Was he losing? Was it all too much? Was this an act of self-immolation? I'm afraid we will never know.

If the newspaper wasn't so old, and hadn't since been used to light a fire to cook this summer's last pot of clam chowder, we might pursue the matter further. But it's all old history now. Five summers have come and gone. The wound has long since healed, and Hubert Humphrey lost. Or did he? Inco

Servants' Pension Bill To House

OTTAWA (CP) - A government bill to raise public servants pensions in line with vants' pensions in line with living-cost increases won quick approval Tuesday by the Commons welfare committee, and returned to the House for final passage.

Key clauses of the bill would remove the two-percent ceiling now imposed on public service pensions for their yearly cost-of-living increases. Under the legislation, the pensoiens would rise at a rate equal to the actual cost of living.

The House already has passed a bill raising old age security pensions and providing for their increase quarterly with the cost of living.

ly with the cost of living.

Treasury board officials said the latest bill would benefit about 100,000 former public servants next year if implemented Jan, 1 as expected.

It would raise the total pay-

It would raise the total payments next year by $25 million, to about $300,000.

The bill would also raise employees' and the government's contributions to the pension account to one percent of earnings. But that change would not take place until 1977. Contributions now are 5 per cent of earnings. are .5 per cent of earnings.

MacMillan Bloedel is well on its way to becoming Brit-ish Columbia's first $1 billion company as its 1973 sales piccontinues to be strong.

Sales and other income by the giant company totalled $606 million by the end of June, pointing to sales of about $1.2 billion this year.

The company does not issue forecasts of sales or earnings. the company will certainly exceed $1 billion in sales. Whether it hits or surpasses $1.2 billion would depend upon a number of factors including

Pentagon Bares More False Reporting

WASHINGTON (WPI) A Pentagon "white paper" sent to Congress Monday reveals that a White House-inspired system of dual-reporting to keep a B-52 bombing in Cambodia secret in 1969 and early 1970 was followed by more false target reporting later in 1970 and '71 that was not ordered by

The 32-page defence department report also revealed details for the first time on the dimensions of clandestine U.S. ground involvement in Laos between September 1965 and February 1971, and in Cambodia between May 1967 and June 30, 1970.

Over the years the report states, 1,446 "reconnaissance" teams — usually involving three U.S. soldiers plus a larger number of South Vietnamese or idigenous troops — in addition, there were 203 platoon-sized (about 45 men) cross-border forays, usually involving five or six Americans on each one, plus three "multi-platoon" operations each involving 20-22 Americans.

— Including all three "multi-platoon" operations were made in 1970, after Congress had passed legislation in December, 1969, prohibiting use of "ground combat troops" in 4 Thus, the Pentagon argues, the U.S. spe-cial forces troops taking part in these crossborder operations were not "combat" troops and thus not in violation of the law.

Using the Pentagon's statistics would indicate that some 5,500 Americans took part in these forays, which means that a number several times as large represented the total allied forces that moved in and out of Laos in

Though some former special forces troops have testified before the committee that casualties on these raids were high, the report indicates only 76 Americans as being killed in Laos and 27 in Cambodia. A review of

in which Americans took part included 1,119 reconnaissance teams, nine platon-sized operations and one multi-platoon foray.

This would indicate a total of at least 3,400 Americans moving across the border over the years preceding the officially announced allied incursion on April 30, 1970. The secret ground operations, as the report indicates, also prompted a sizable amount of American air support.

Statistics show almost 9,000 flights by U.S. helicopter gunships and fighter-bombers in Laos in support of these operations and some

A Premier and Friend In Their Morning Romp

Just about the last place in the world that you'd want to be, if you are ever so slightly introverted or a man who normally avoids the human race until after lunch, is Room 178 of the Empress Hotel at 8:30 a.m. when Mr. Barrett meets Mr.

We were there at that terrible hour earlier this week when the premier submitted to one of his periodic encounters with Jack Webster, the king of the hot-line radio inquisitors. The experience was, as expected, exhausting. At an hour when decent people are either in bed or staring sightlessly into space awaiting, doom, both Barrett and Webster oze vitality, bounce and joi de vivre in a truly disgusting manner.

The purpose of our expedition, though it hardly seems to have been worth the effort in retrospect, was to see how Premier Barrett was bearing up on the eve, as the saying goes, of the autumn sitting of the legislature.

goes, of the autumn sitting of the regislature.

The answer is that, measured on any meter that registered energy, insouciance, assurance, high spirits and good humor, Mr. Barrett would get nine points in a possible 10.

When we mumbled a question about his health (we mumble a lot before noon) the premier replied, "I feel great, fantas-tic!" There was no reason to doubt this in the ensuing 90

Webster described this particular interview as "the ten thousandth and one broadcast with Davey" which is an exaggeration, but they've been meeting this way at microphones geration, but they've been meeting this way at microphones for at least a dozen years. Webster likes to recall that on their very first interview he remarked, incredulously, "So this is the man who might just one day be premier!" Now he says: "Of course, it was a preposterous idea." And the premier, smiling a quixotic smile, says: "I never doubted it."

Both men are highly professional at the microphones and, indeed, alike in many ways. Both have distinctly pear-shaped figures which require occasional diets. Now, sweeping into the small Empress room with three minutes to go before air time, the Premier doffs his blue-and-white checked sports jacket, steps out of his black loafers and enjoys a moment of consumarship.

He has invested in a book called "Dr. Atkins' Diet Revolution — The High Calorie Way To Stay Thin Forever," has tost six pounds in six days and is feeling, if not looking, webster, currently over-weight, charged up for his first question and with two packs of cigarettes at the ready beside him, looks at the premier dourly and gives his engineer a voice level with the words, "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party."

"That's for sure," Barrett grins, totally relaxed, small stockinged feet up on an extra chair, pouring himself a sugar-less cream-less coffee.

The guest, not nearly so nonchalent, soon realizes that he is witness to two separate shows.

Is witness to two separate shows.

The first, in those periods when Barrett and Webster are actually on the air, is pure Marshall McLuhan. The medium is the message. It is largely a personality exercise with the predictable role-playing—Webster the mildly apoplectic, abrasive, well-informed questioner. Barrett gravely plausible, quiet-mannered, deftly turning aside Webster's generalizations. ("That's nonsense, Jack, just nonsense.")

It is when the microphones are dead during the commercial and news breaks that the warmth and bantering humor

cial and news breaks that the warmth and bantering humor of the two men makes the more entertaining show. I doubt if there's been such a rapport betwen public figures since Eko and Iko, Barnum and Bailey's sheep-headed twins from Ecuador. Webster, whose respect and admiration for a man is measured in the range and depth of his insults, leaves no doubt that he considers Barrett worthy of his worst.

"God, Davey, if you fell into a barrel of it you'd come out smelling of violets," he roars.
"Sometimes I wonder what you eat for breakfast on the boat coming over here," says the Premier. "Must you be so nasty? Why is it necessary for you to hate, Jack? Let's not get all worked up. Let's have peace and love around here."

Webster: "I'm nothing if not vicious. But you're nice, Davey. You're so nice I don't even think of you as a Jew."

The premier shakes with laughter. Still laughing, he

"You see how he treats me? Little, chubby me?" be asks. "You should have seen him with my predecessor. Oh, the bowing and the scraping and the kissing of the ring. It was something to see, I'll tell you."

Now it is Webster's turn to be broken up. They laugh together until the exact moment when the microphones are alive again. Then it's back to business.

It is only when the 90 minutes are over — in this case certainly the liveliest 90 minutes in radio — that there is a moment of introspection. "God, what a grind this is." Webster groans, leaning back, wringing wet from his exertions. "I wonder if I'll ever be off this merry-go-round."

The premier, getting back into his shoes and jacket, listens sympathetically. "I guess we all have higher aspirations," he says. "I've some plans, myself, that I hope to real-tze one day. Being premier is just an interruption in my life."

The guest tip-toed away, leaving them there — the 43year-old first citizen of the province with a yearly income of $52,000, the 55-year-old interviewer with an income of $130,000 and wondered if there were ever two men who so thoroughly enjoyed making it.

Insurance Handling Delay Urged on Victoria Agents

Victoria insurance agents are being urged to delay handling the new government general insurance to be launched Oct. 1.

The agents, through the Insurance Agents Association, are waiting to hear details of the commission rates they will be receiving to handle government car insurance, which they consider a top priority issue.

Finnie said the agents were optimistic that the commission rates for car insurance would be high enough to make it an attractive propostition.

The agents would look more favorably upon the general in-surance contracts if the car insurance commissions were at a satisfactory level.

The agents would receive commissions for selling the government's monopoly car insurance plan and would also receive commissions for selling fire and accident insurance for the government and for private companies.

Even if the car insurance commissions are high, there might not be a rush to the government's general insurance scheme "because there still is a lot of bitterness in the industry" over the government's action in taking over the car insurance and invading the general insurance field, he said.

Some of the tension can be alleviated by generous com-missions and more consultation with the industry, Finnie said. The board of directors of duled to be introduced to Vancouver Island on Sept. 29-30.

Points Are On Board For Island Cup Series

Most professionals are willing and if chosen amateurs agree, the "Island Cup" matches will be played at Glen Meadows. It is without a sponsor and not sanctioned by any of the golf-associations, but the affair could catch on in a big Conceived by retired professional Al Zimmerman, the Island Cup series will match Vancouver Island's top 10 professionals against the 10 best amateurs. Selection is on the basis of points accumulated in Vancouver Island tour-

Final selections for the inaugural series will be determined following the Mt. Brenton Open at Chemainus this weekend and the Village Green Open at Duncan Sept. 22

The Island Cup series borrows from the blueprints of the Ryder and Hudson Cup matches, and has two-fold appeal. Firstly, it is managed without adding another load to the already-overburdened course schedules. Secondly, the point system stimulates season-long interest in Island tournaments.

With only 20 golfers playing off, only five starting times must be borrowed from a club on a single day. No great interruption for the club members who look forward to playing on a weekend. Times for the inaugural, incidentally, already have been assured at month's end by Glen Meadows owner Percy Criddle. The two-day confrontation will include scotch foursomes competition on one day and singles matches on the second.

It's possible the series may have a prominent sponsor next year. A local representative of a national firm has expressed considerable interest in the format. It can remain a low-budget promotion yet the interest, because of the point-accumulation system, is sustained throughout the summer.

Regardless of what happens at Mt. Brenton or Village Green Open, Cowichan professioal Bill Wakeham has the individual point leadership locked up.

Points from 10 Island tournaments, starting with the Island Open in the spring and including Molson's Esquimalt

GOLF ernie fedoruk

Open at Gorge Vale last weekend, have been compiled by Points are awarded on the basis of 150 for first, 100 for s ond and thereafter scale down to 10 points for 20th place.

Wakeham, as mentioned, is the runaway leader with 825 points from seven tournaments. Zimmerman is No. 2 man on the pro team with 282.5 points. The remaining eight pros (with point totals bracketed) are Dave Ewart of Port Alberni (277.5), Dick Silverberg of Glen Meadows (112.5), Don Bills-borough of Uplands (97.5), Norm Boden of March Meadows (87.5), Mike Parker of Victoria (86.5), Scott Keenlyside, former Colwood assistant (80), Mike Rivers of Nanaimo (75)

Cedar Hill's Greg Barnes is the leading amateur point-getter to date with 312.5 with Al McLeod of Cowiohan next in line (297.5). Others in the top 10 are Cec Ferguson of Gregarah (257.5), Dave Mick of Gorge Vale (250), Grant Milliken of Gorge Vale (226.5), Mike Gray of Uplands (215), Bob Hunt of Uplands (140), Ken Floyd of Colwood (124.16) Hal Jacobsen of Glen Meadows (122.5), Bob Beauchemin and Lex Sutcliffe, both of Gorge Vale (tied with 90) and Earl Davies of Gorge Vale (75)

Eight other amateurs have compled 75 points or more. They are Marty Richards, Jack Wintemute, Ron Bell, Jimmy Morasco, Alex Forward, Doug Ledding, Urban Allen and Jeff There have been some ommissions but the fault lies with up-Island clubs who failed to detail the top 20 finishers in their tournaments. But, thanks to Viv's calculations and Zimmerman's persistence, we've got the Island Cup series

New Logging Roads Noted Within Strathcona Park

Some rambling notes along the trail:

MacMillan Bloedel appears to be going ahead with plans to log some of its remaining timber leases within Strathcona Park . . . While travelling the region north of Great Central Lake over the Labor Day weekend, we found three new access roads in the process of being pushed into areas north of the Ash River, between Elsie and Oshinow lakes and well within the park boundary ... South of the same stretch of river, Raven Lumber of Campbell River is still logging timber gained in the trade-off for Cape Scott parkland... On the more positive side of things, Mac and Blo is to be congratulated on the new directional signs we saw scattered about the Sproat Lake division... Made of wood in a similar manner to the provincial park signs, they are easy to read and displayed in a conspicuous manner.

Charles Estlin, chief of enforcement for the fish and wildlife branch, has been appointed co-ordinator of all-terrain vehicles . . The provincial government also announced a grant of $2,500 to the Vernon-based B.C. Snow Vehicle Association to assist that organization to continue its program of safety promotion . . . Estlin will co-ordinate controls aimed at owners and operators of various off-road vehicles with emphasis on safety and protection of the environment . . . Snow-mobiles, the most numerous type of off-highway vehicle, are the only ones presently regulated under the All Terrain Vehi-

Doug Wood, bow hunting director of the B.C. Archery Association, passes along word that the Nimpkish Valley hunt was a great success this season . . "Enthusiasm was high as game was plentiful, maybe too much so for bow hunting. It is very difficult to sneak up on a group of eight to 10 deer to get within bow range — there is always one looking around" . . . Doug counted a total of 282 deer, including 62 bucks, during the week-long annual affair . . . Seventeen bucks were bagged by bow hunters... Brian Chipperfield of Nanaimo won the trophy for the largest deer with a four-pointer that measured trophy for the largest user with a four points and Jim Hatter of Victoria won a trophy for the many families attending the hunt this year, the BCAA put up a trophy for the largest trout caught by a woman . . . Linda Riddle, 12, won with a 15½-inch cuthroat and Dorothy Wood. Doug's wife, placed second with a 131/2-inch beauty.

More on the same theme ... Most bow hunters are pleased with the new hunting regulations on archery but many still feel that grouse should be included as fair game in the special season for bow and arrow enthusiasts . . . Bow hunters don't hunt grouse in particular, but with the odds stacked for their quarry while hunting larger animals, a grouse in the pot - encountered while hunting deer - might

Although we agree with the principle of stopping hunting within parks, we must object to the mud-slinging tactics employed by the anti-hunting fraternity during the controversy involving East Sooke Park . . . Making hasty generalizations that lump all hunters as "hooligans" might serve an oblique purpose, but it's still dirty pool . . . Every group, including birdwatchers, probably has a bad element . . . But this section of the hunting crowd, a fractional minority, seems to receive the most publicity.

George Smith landed an eight-pound, five-ounce salmon to take top prize in the recent CFB Esquimalt Recreation Association's annual derby . . . Mary Henson won the women's prize with a 5:10-pounder and A. Loewen captured a special prize . . . Brian Collis caught a 1:11-pounder — the smallest fish in the derby.

Poachers are making significant dent in the population of Atlantic salmon . . . Since commercial fishing for salmon was banned over large areas of Eastern Canada, a brisk black market has been created and poaching activities have increased tremendously ... Wardens are being threatened, intimidated and in some cases actually attacked by gangs of poachers who are netting and dynamiting pools in order collect fish that may bring up to $2 per pound... The federal government has paid over $2.5 million to compensate commercial fishermen who lost privileges as a result of the ban... All this is in danger unless immediate steps are taken to enforce existing regulations.

Route to Leave the Joggers Bushed

MIKE ELCOCK

By JIM CRERAR Times Staff

You'd jog more often, you say, except that the last time you tried puffing your way around the block the neighbor's pooch tore the heels out your sneakers and your friends began eyeing you sympathetically, as if you had mentally slipped a cog?

Cheer up. Help is on the way, thanks to Mike Elcock, athletic director at the Univeristy of Victoria.

Taking a page from UVic's rugby and cross-country teams, along with one from the Times' Weekend supplement, Elcock has devised the perfect route for the bashful jogger. And if his plan works, he'll have runners coming out of the woodwork -literally - because his route runs university campus.

Last December, Elcock no-ticed a Weedend Magazine article dealing with 550 jogging trails in West Germany. These were no ordinary cow paths blazed through the bush, though. At regular inbush, though. At regular intervals joggers could stop and, by following directions on a sign, supplement their running with some simple ex-

The jogging trails were just the answer for Elcock, faced this year with a burgeoning student body and cramped recreational facilities.

What's more, he didn't even have to blaze a trail. That had already been taken care of by players and country runners who beat down training and competition routes through the bush lot on the west side of the Elcock simply measured out a 1, 1-3-mile course starting at the physical education hut, cutting across the rugby and soccer field and sircling through the bush. More than half the route, seven-tenths of mile, runs through the

By the end of this week, six stations will be set up along the wooded segment of the route, complete with signs showing various muscle-stretching exercises.

Dave Docherty, assistant professor of physical education, devised the exercises.

"I've had a lot of inquiries about the trail," Elcock said. "Most are from members of the faculty, but I think the students will use it, too. It's relatively private through the woods so there's no need to feel self-conscious." Those completing 100 miles of jogging during the Sep-tember-April term will be eligible for membership in the school's Ton-Up club and will receive a free T-shirt. Use of the trial is open to everyone, but only UVic stu-dents and staff will be elegi-ble for the free T-shirts. And Elcock urges that envone who hasn't exercised regularly in the last few years get a medi-cal checkup before tackling the course.

Those interested in using the trail can obtain informa-tion by phoning Elcock at the university, 477-6911, local 790.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) Peterborough PCOs bounced Richmond Roadrunners 16-12 Tuesday night to even the Minto Cup Canadian junior lacrosse final at one game each.

Third of the best-of-seven series will be played here to-

Peterborough may be without star forward Jim John-ston, who suffered a leg injury in the first period, and Mark Vitarelli, injured in the third.

Richmond is expected to play without star forward Brian Tasker, who suffered a broken bone in his heel Sunday night, and rookie sensa-tion Rico Bellusci, who left Tuesday's game after the first period.

The Peterborough team was much improved over the first game which they lost 15-5 in Richmond. Coach Ben Floyd was pleased with the aggressiveness of his players and said the defensive showing was much better.

Peterborough used two gos peterborough used two goa-lies—Tim Barrie and Fred Gardner—but neither played particularly well. It was a tribute to Peterborough checking that Richmond scored only 12 goals.

Taki Vohalis topped the Richmond players with three goals and two assists. Bob Tasker and Gerry Pinder scored two goals each for Richmond. Other Richmond goals were scored by Laurie Droza, Tom Penaway, Rico Bellusci, Ed Asheroft and Harvey Olsen.

teams, playing at Ibrox stadifairly even combat for most of the game. The match seemed set to end in a four minutes, Celtic scored two goals.

Suddenly, the Rangers' end, bottles and beer cans sprayed onto the lower half of the ter-racing. Many fans, among them women and children standing at the bottom of the terracing, caught the full force of the flying objects. and, terror stricken, spilled onto the pitch. There were 80 arrests and the first aid attendants had one of their busiest Saturdays in years.

Saturdays in years.

The usual suggested "cures" followed the violence. Some thought Rangers-Celtic matches should be played in the morning before the public houses opened—'thus reducing the danger of drunkenness. Others thought a return to corporal punishment the only answer; "hooligans only laugh at fines and prison sentences," maintain the "bring-back-the-birch" brigade.

Yet no one in authority seemed to want to mention the religious bigotry which is still inherent in certain sections of supporters of both clubs (could it be that Glasgow has had enough bad publicity already?).

Intense rivalry is one thing; religious hatred is another. Unless those who fan the flames of Catholic-Protestant differences are weeded out of the terraces, it is doubtful if there will ever be peace every other respect, are show-pieces of which Scotland could be proud.

um, were locked in close and lence became apparent when goalless draw until, in the last bound train into sidings, locked the doors and waited for police to arrive.

This followed rampaging by supporters who smashed lightbulbs and windows, tore up seats and wrecked toilets. But they were fans of Oxford United, a little Second Divionited, a little Second Division club which had played a "friendly" game at Hereford.

Previously, most of the violence in England has come from supporters of the big city clubs. There are now signs that the disease is spreading to the small clubs of the lower divisions.

And yet, despite the hooligan elements and the soaring admission charges, millions — not just in Britain but throughout the world — will cram soccer grounds from now until May next year.

Drop Food Trade Barriers Canada Urges GATT

Times News Services

TOKYO - Non-tariff trade barriers, especially in agriculture, should be eliminated, or at least reduced, Canada told the ministerial meeting of the 82-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade which opened here today.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie outlined Canada's objectives as part of the ceremonial start of a two-year rewriting of the world's trade rules under the auspices of which sets the patterns of commerce in private enterprise. Working level netions begin in Geneva in October.

"It is Canada's view,' Gillespie said, "that the forthcoming negotiations should seek in particular to attain ... a significant improvement in the terms of access for agricultural exports resulting in ... increased stability in international trade."

The five Canadian objectives outlined were:

The reduction or elimina-tion of the effects of non-tariff barriers. The GATT secretaridentified about non-tariff barriers and Canada is interested in pursuing about 80. These include such things as quotas, valuations customs forms are processed. - A "substantial reduc-tion" on tariffs on both agricultural and industrial products.

A "significant improve-ment in the terms of access for agricultural goods.

A "comprehensive at-tack" on barriers to trade in more processed forms of raw materials. for developing countries to improve export earnings.

Gillespie's speech noted Canada's support of the GATT target date of the end of 1975 for completion of negotiations.

Traffic Blitz Pays Off

CALGARY (CP) — A police crack-down against bad driv-ing is producing good results — at the expense of errant at the expense of errandrivers.

Jack Davies, head of the police traffic office, said today the number of traffic accidents has been dropping to 30 a day from 50 since the operation began Sunday.

On the other hand, some 150 summonses have been issued daily—five times the usual number.

Police Chief Brian Sawyer launched the campaign to fight against what he called the shocking rate of increase in traffic accidents in the city.

A special 20-man squad, working in two eight-hour shifts, has been assigned to the job.

Chief Sawyer said the squad will operate as long as neces-

Court was told that Plante, 42. evaded some $18,400 in federal income taxes between 1965 and 1971 byu inflating company purchases, suppressing sales revenue and charg-ing personal expenses against the company.

WEYBURN, Sask. (CP) — A Hoistein cow attempted to give birth to a 234-pound calf, about 150 pounds heavier than normal, on a farm in south-east Saskatchewan.

Both died and veterinarian

Dr. L. A. Hethworth said the calf's unusual size was difficult to explain but probably resulted from a freak pathocondition commonly called dropsy.

In addition to the calf, the cow carried about 650 pounds of excess fetal fluid.

EDMONTON (CP) - Premier Peter Lougheed has formed a provincial solicitor-general's department and appointed Helen Hunley (PC — Rocky Mountain House) as minister at $35,500 a year.

Miss Hunley, a former min-ister without portfolio, will be responsible for the six provin-cial correctional institutions, the probations branch of the attorney-general's department, the Alberta Racing Commission and the Alberta

Liquor Control Board.
The new department gives the provincial cabinet 22 members, and reduces the number of ministers without

REGINA (CP) - The Saskatchewan government will create a feed grains marketing commission to counter the new federal feed grains policy, Agriculture Minister Jack Messer said Tuesday.

The commission would regulate, among others, the federal agriculture products board, which under the new federal policy has been employed to buy feed grains. If the federal board is going to purchase in Saskatchewan, Messer said, it will have to be at prices set by the provincial commission. The same applies to eastern Canadian livestock producers, who may stock producers, who may later be authorized under the federal policy to buy in the prairies instead of having to go through the Wheat Board as now. through the Canadian documents stolen from the Indian affairs department. She asked him to return to her office later in the afternoon.

While Miss MacDonald was still in the House, Miss Gelber sent another note saying po-lice had continued to question her before they left.
"They asked Miss Gelber about her whereabouts and about my activities. They wanted to know who we had seen, who we had talked to," in the previous 24 hours.

SAW SPEAKER

Miss MacDonald went to see Speaker Lucien Lamoureux after question period that day, and later in the af-ternoon met Det. Harrison and another officer whose name she did not note.

The police asked if she had spoken with any leaders of the Native Youth Organization. She told them she had talked with them that day when they marched on Parliament Hill after occupying In-dian affairs department offices for 24 hours the previous day. There were reports some files were missing from the offices.

MacDonald is her party's Indian affairs critic.
"There was no mention of files when I talked to the Native Youth people," she said.

Miss MacDonald said she was concerned only with the first police visit as a matter of privilege. She had invited police the second time.

Under the British North America Act and through tradition, MPs and senators are to be free from police interference in their duties.

Newsprint Priority Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — Roger Lussier, president of Les Hebdos du Canada, called for government action Tuesday to induce the pulp and paper industry to give priority to the newsprint needs of Canadian newspapers.
Mr. Lussier, whose association represents French-lan-guage weeklies across Canada, said in a statement the newsprint shortage has caused weeklies to reduce their size.

"It is not normal that our pulp and paper industry con-tinues to supply foreign mar-kets while our own news-papers suffer a shortage of newsprint," he said.

About 6,900 employees at nine pulp and paper mills across Canada are currently off work. The strikes have caused some Canadian daily newspapers to reduce the size of their editions and to drop weekend color supplements.

ROAD RIGHTS WON, BUT VICTORY COSTLY

Monday no settlement has been reached on moving his father's service station across the Yellowhead Highway at this community 160 miles east of Prince George and he has been told it could be left without road access soon.

His father, Andrew Norum, 76, had thought he had won a battle against a highways department eviction order in May.

Norum defied a department order that DUNSTER (CP) - Andy Norum said evicted him from his small station and later won government approval to build a new station across the road.

Andy Norum said the government will only pay his father $6,000, however, to more present station, Estimates received by Norums for the move run as high as

The younger Norum said the station hasn't been moved because a settlement could not be reached.

This Saturday In Weekend Magazine

If you're a Canadian you should know who he is. He was born in a Nova Scotia town of 7,000 people where his family owned an industry which has become well known. His nature made him an unlikely politician, but when he became one he succeeded and holds a top post. You guessed it, he's Robert Stanfield and he's featured this Saturday in Weekend Magazine. Don't miss the excerpt from the book Stanfield by Geoffrey Stevens about the early days of Stanfield before he had any thoughts of becoming a politician.

Also in this issue: Bill Trent talks to two experts about the writing of fraudulent cheques. One, a sociologist, and the other, a former cheque artist, are collaborating on a book which will be ready for publication this fall. Margo Oliver accommodates with a flurry of curry recipes, this Saturday in Weekend Magazine. Here they are, five of the best: Southern Indian Curry, Northern Indian Dry Curry, Malay Curry, Vegetable Rice, and Quick Hot Pickles.

Just "What The Heck" Is This "Supply and Demand" Business?

Well for one thing it gets blamed for many of the price increases that occur in food products these days... and it's true. But "supply and demand" is what our whole economic system is based on. The price increase in pork is a good example and has been going on for many years. When supply is limited and demand great, the price bid to the grower is high. Because at that time it looks attractive to raise hogs, production is increased by the raiser of pigs and new production by people wishing to get into what looks like a good business. As the supply increases to fill all the demand the prices bid go down and if the farmers costs aren't recovered he decreases production and the new ones get out of it... and then... the "supply" decreases below the "demand" and the bids on hogs go up and ... well, you can see how it goes. Some "supplies" of course are short because of crop failures but more and more "demand" is being created world wide by nations who have traditionally not bought some commodities in quantity. Even so our average expenditive for Well for one thing it gets blamed for many of the traditionally not bought some commodities in quantity. Even so our average expenditure for food of 20% with Western Europe 37%, Japan 32.2% and Eastern Europe at 36% to 54%.

Although many men are baffled by economic complexities, the more than three mil-lion women who remain in the home are usually far more confused than men or their 2.8 million working sisters.

Countless widows have paid dearly for this carefree attitude and false sense of security built up through years of marriage, says a Banque Canadienne Nationale newsletter. They are jolted into reality when confronted with the nightmare of a tangled estate,

It is the main ingredient that makes fruit thins taste

For the uninitiated, a fruit thin is a sugar-coated, jellied fruit candy. They are eaten mostly as an after dinner tid-bit. Lamme makes them in about 15 flavors.

The combination of pectin, crushed fruit or fruit peels, fruit juices and the proper amount of glucose are combined in an 80-gallon kettle and cooked at 230 degrees for 45 minutes.

From the kettle, the flowing gel is poured into paper-lined metal trays, where it hardens and subsequently is diced into inch-squares on a machine Lamme specifically modified.

There are about one million single working women in Can-ada who must cope with basic economics and even for wives the dismal fact is one of every four marriages ends in di-vorce. Dividing up the marital assets can be traumatic unless the woman knows her full rights.

Banque Canadienne Nationale offers some simple fi-nancial advice for women.

First, no matter what the couple's means, every wife should make sure her husband has a will and know where it is kept.

"She must know what provisions he has made for her, what his last wishes are, just as she should look ahead by drawing up a will of her own.

Some cash should be in easy reach in case of a husband's sudden death. Bank accounts are frozen when a person dies and cannot be touched until the estate is settled, except for an amount of $500 which can be turned over to the heirs immediately.

But it should not take the death of her husband to shock a woman into learning how the economy works. Consuming is a keystone of prosperity and these days consuming means credit-buying.

Besides knowing how to use credit wisely, every woman should be aware of laws against dishonest merchants

Morbid Curiosity

DEAR ABBY: I have this has been over here asking me what's wrong with her be-cause she and her husband have been fighting a lot. She says he hasn't been coming home for supper lately. He eats out and comes home at bedtime.

I know one thing that is wrong, but I can't find the words to tell her. The minute you walk into Jane's house you smell this funny smell. It's like food decaying. And that's probably what it is, because, you never saw such a filthy house. You have to step over boxes and sacks to get from one room to the other.

You can't sit down anywhere because every chair and couch is covered with stuff — books, newspapers, clothes, boxes. Her dining table is loaded with more stuff, and so is her kitchen

I noticed she served John his dinner every night on a tray in front of the TV because she's too lazy to clear off space on the table. Anyway, I think you get the picture. I just hate to hurt Jane's feelings, but I'd like to tell her to clean up her house and keep it that way and maybe John would feel like coming home more often.

DEAR FRIEND: A "best" friend should do the friendly thing and TELL Jane exactly she thinks is the matter. What are you waiting for?

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor in my condominium complex recently suffered a heart at-tack, and within minutes after the police and ambulance arrived, a crowd gathered. fered with the ambulance attendants so they could get a good look at the victim as he was being placed in the am-bulance. One man actually stopped the man's wife as she was getting into the ambu-lance with her husband, and asked: "What happened?"

Lest you think I was part of that crowd, I viewed all this from my apartment window.

How can people be so cruel and nosy? And then they at-tempt to excuse their action by saying they were "con-cerned." — Not Nosy.

DEAR NOT NOSY: Call it "morbid curiosity." There will always be people who chase fire trucks and ambu-lances and who take some perverse pleasure in witnessing the suffering of others.

DEAR ABBY: I know I shouldn't think about myself so much, but I feel so big and ugly and dumb. In other words, I just don't have any confidence in myself.

I'm 5 foot 8 and weigh 140, I have mousy brown haircut in a shag, which I hate on me. But I also hated my hair when it was long. I'm 24 and married. Everything I buy I want to return as soon as I get it home. Everything I cook I feel like throwing out, and I never feel like I look right in anything I put on.

All this lack of confidence in myself is driving me nuts. I hate for people to look me in the face because I think they're looking at my nose. I know I have shoulders like a football player, but I'm not any bigger than my sister, and she always looks nice.

Please help me, Abby, I'm so miserable.—One Big Mess.

X-RAYS, JETS CANCER RISKS

WASHINGTON (AP) - Excessive use of diagnostic X-rays and increasing jet travel pose much greater risks of death from cancer than do nuclear power plants, barring major mishap, says a nuclear physicist.

The physicist, Ralph Lapp, told an international scientific conference on radiation protection he estimates that:

—Unless it is sharply curtailed, "the excessive use of X-rays will mean 50,000 cancer deaths in the United States in Radiation exposure from domestic high-altitude jet travel could mean about 7,200 more cancer-deaths in the same period, and could cause 400 deaths annually by the turn of the century.

These figures compare, he said, with only 90 cancer-deaths he said can be expected in the same period associated with radioactivity released in routine activities of nuclear power plants — unless there are major accidents.

He addressed the third congress sponsored by the Inter-national Radiation Protection Association, attended by 800 delegates from about 60 countries.

Lapp urged establishment of national restrictive standards on the diagnostic use of X-rays to cut the diagnostic dose in half by the end of the century.

Lapp, an industrial and congressional consultant on nuclear affairs, offered no estimates of the number of deaths and injuries from a major accident involving a nuclear power

But the Atomic Energy Commission, while asserting the likelihood of such accidents is extremely remote, has said that hundreds of deaths and thousands of injuries could result from a single major mishap. Lapp also said his estimates on cancer-deaths from X-rays and jet travel compare with 6,800 to be expected from radio - active fallout from past nuclear tests and current French and Chinese tests. All risks from man-made radiation and from jet-travel exposure pale, he said, in comparison with 200,000 cancerdeaths expected during the rest of this century from natural

He urged that efforts be made to reduce exposure of the population "to all forms of avoidable ionizing radiation."

Seat-Belt Plea Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) - A private member's bill requiring that seat belts be installed in commercial vehicles and used by vehicle operators was rejected by the government in the commons Tuesday.

Barry Mather (NDP-Surrey-White Rock), sponsor of the bill, said similar legisla-tion has saved lives in the United States and would have a similar effect in Canada.

The U.S. legislation makes seat-belt use mandatory for operators and co-drivers of uses and trucks using interstate highways.

Mather said he introduced the bill in the hope of getting a Commons committee to study its provisions and en-courage measures to make inter-provincial use of seat mandatory on commercial vehicles.

The bill was talked out without coming to a vote in the hour allotted for private members' business. But Charles Turner, parliamentary secretary to Transport Minister Jean Marchand, said he would support a study of he would support a study of the matter by a Commons

Donald Blenkarn (PC-Peel South) said the bill should go to committee immediately so Parliament "can give leadership to the automobile industry, rather than following foreign standards.' Otto Jelinek (PC—Toronto High Park-Humber Valley) gave full support to Mather's proposal, saying compulsory seat-belt use in Australia has cut traffic deaths by 20 per

If Parliament approves, this system will disappear next month and will be replaced by a flat $12 monthly payment for all eligible children and youths until the 1974 plan takes effect. The interim payment would not be taxable.
Under the 1974 proposal, Ottawa would pay an average $20 a child to each province, which would determine the amount of the allowance. The provinces would have to give a minimum $12 a child to mothers but there would be

Minority Group Housing Must Be Upgraded: Ruff

Society must provide minority groups with the same standard of housing enjoyed by middle class families, says Kathleen Ruff, director of the B.C. Human Rights Act. Ruff was guest speaker Tuesday night at the first annual speaker Sylvicing Rental Ruff described the housing situation of low-income families as "a hidden problem" because poor people don't have the know-how or the power to make their position known.

She pointed out that the act itself is a recognition of the fact some people are denied certain basic essentials such as employment and housing.

Opposition members in the legislature today criticized the provincial government for allowing unnecessary "extravagance and lavishness" in the renovations being made to some ministerial offices. Most vocal critic was Don Phillips (SC—South Peace River), who said he specifically objects to the opulent condition of the office of Human Resources Minister Norman Levi, which was the first in a series of new ministerial offices to be completed.

Phillips said the new office is "too lavish, especially in

Trim Heather Varieties For Better Summer Show

Before another day passes, check the heathers in your garden or in planters to see if you forgot to cut off all the old flower stems. You may have missed one or two of the late summer varieties. In fact you may find some stems still flowering at the tips while the remainder is covered with dry brown blossoms.

At this time it is a good plan to sacrifice the few last flowers on the tips. Cut the stems below the lowest brown blossom just above the green foliage.

Don't delay for you want the small new shoots, which will grow after cutting, to harden in the sunshine and coolness of the remainder of fall and thus be ready to survive the winter weather.

Leaving the old flower stems on heathers is one reason plants become thin, straggling, sparse in flowering and ultimately dying out. The last straw may be a hard winter with frost penetrating the thin covering to reach the roots; or it may be scorching sun baking the exposed soil.

These conditions are preventable by cutting back the ends of the flowered shoots every year immediately most of the blooms have faded. Every year means from the first year of flowering, when your plants may be only the size of a

It you have heathers and heaths which bloom in other seasons you will notice some are in full bloom now. Do not cut these back until spring. About the middle of April, or earlier if you are near salt water and so do not have late frosts, is the time to make the rounds again trimining back the fall and winter heathers. You are then just in time to catch the spring growing season for those varieites.

The Irish heath or bell-heather, the purple or white Daboecia cantabrica, still opens flowers throughout September, because it likes the cooler weather. I find it not too difficult to cut off the stems which have finished blooming and leave those with unopened buds on the full length of the Fall and winter flowering heathers are full of unopened buds too. Don't touch them.

If the weather remains mostly dry, a water spray over all the heathers will be appreciated, for while they inhabit dry open sunny slopes in Europe they frequently are blessed with humid mists and fogs. We lack these amenities on the south end of Vancouver Island yet we love to grow, heathers to flower all year round.

SOLUTION THURSDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

An anecdote was going the rounds this past fall was the following:

In a divorce case, a woman stated in court that her reason for wanting a divorce was because her husband couldn't play bridge.

judge interrupted. "How could you ask for a divorce for such a reason? You should be happy that he doesn't play

"You don't understand, your Honor," replied the woman. "He can't play bridge - but he does every day."

What the woman meant, of course, was that her husband had no technical ability, but nevertheless was a true devotee of the game. He might, for example, have been the South declarer in today's deal. Nei-ther side vulnerable. North

The bidding:

Opening lead: Jack of 9

After winning the opening heart lead with his queen, South cashed the queen and king of trumps, picking up the four outstanding pieces. He then led a diamond and the state of finessed dummy's queen, which lost to East's king. The jack of diamonds was returned, dummy's ace winning.

Declarer then led a low club, covering East's nine declarer had to lose two more club tricks to East's king and ten. Thus he went down one.

Actually, after drawing trumps, declarer had an abso lutely guaranteed contract? The ace and king of hearts should have been cashed at "That is ridiculous" the from dummy. Then would udge interrupted. "How come a diamond — and the finesse would be spurned. The trick would be won by dummy's ace, after which the diamond oileen would be led. East would win the trick with his king and, simulta-neously, he would become the victim of an end play.

> If East returned either heart or a diamond, South would discard his deuce of clubs and ruff the trick in dummy. He would then con-cede two club tricks and claim his contract, his only being a diamond and two clubs.

> And if East returned the ten of clubs instead, South would play low, and West would take his ace to play back a club. East would capture this lead with his king — and South would have his gamegoing trick in clubs.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

We have 1399 for the game today. Two 9's, one 3, and one 1. Using all four each time, but no other digits at all, you form expressions for the consecutive numbers from one up.

Any arithmetical signs may be used, but no summation or factorial symbols. Don't forget both types of decimals, powers and roots (no extra digits). For example, 91 plus 3 -9 is a solution for 85.

The limit without break in continuity seems to be 104. I shall be glad to check solutions and will send hints to help in future games if requested.

I Sailed to Tahiti with an All Girl Crew (x), on 13 at 8. A 1968 romantic tale for the pleasure of girl watchers and armchair travellers starring Gardner McKay and Diane McBain.

She Lives!, on 4 at 8:30. No rating available on this 1973 melodrama whose plot is reminiscent of "Love Story" she's dying, he's distraught and together they decide to turn the tide against the inevitable. Filmed in San Francisco and starring Desi Arnaz Jr., and Season Hubley.

In the Heat of the Night (xxxx), on 5 at 8:30. An exciting, superbly acted and directed 1967 film about prejudice, manners and morals in a small Mississippi town. Sidney Poitier, portraying a Philadelphia detective who becomes accidentally involved in trying to solve a murder case, teams with Rod Steiger

7:03 (FM) Themes and Variations — A program about the making and performing of music, flexible enough to devote a whole show to one musical event, or to cover several events in the same amount of time. Although it emphasizes live music, it also includes interviews, documentaries, discussions and quizzes. Hosts are musicologist Dr. Timothy McGee and Jan Tennant. Tonight: A recital by pianist Antonin Kubalek from the 1973 CBC Toronto Festival: Fan-(Vorisek): Prelude. chorale et fuge (Franck).

8:03 (AM) Concern — "Invasion of Privacy". A serious questioning of all aspects of privacy. By freelance writer

Roberta Squire. 10:03 (FM) Ideas — Source of Aesthetic Value: A talk by art critic Paul Duval on artists neglected in their own time and about others over-rated in their own time. What is beauty? What kind of art survives? What perishes and is forgotten.

10:30 (AM) Up at the Cot--tage — Featuring two of the continuing characters on Inside From the Outside (which returns October 3rd), Agnes and Walter. In the cast are Barbara Hamilton, Carl Banas, Judy Sinclair and David Hughes.

11:03 (AM) The Bush and the Salon — "Fekhionwake", by Grayce Lincoln and Tom Arnett, a portrait of the Mo-hawk Indian poet, Pauline Johnson, who toured Canada, and the U.S. and England with readings of her poems, including the best-known "The Song My Paddle Sings". For several years she toured with the actor Walter with the actor Walter McRaye, who became her manager, until she retired from the stage in 1909. The program follows her travels and her career and her constant struggle to impress upon her audiences that she was an Indian first and a poet sec-ond. Nonnie Griffin is Pauline (her Indian name was Tek-hionwake); Dave Hutchison, McRaye and others in the cast are Aileen Seaton, Lynne Gorman, Gillie Fenwick and Allen Doremus, Music is by Lucio Agostini.

Early Thursday Movies

If Winter Comes (x), on 4 at 9:30. A terrible, confused 1947 soap opera which is an insult its cast (Walter Pidgeon and Deborah Kerr).

The Appaloosa (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. A pretentious 1966 western which suffers from too much talk, arty camerawork, and a stilted per formance by Marlon Brando as a wronged buffalo hunter who meets adversity at every turn. John Saxon co-stars.

The Crooked Web (xx), on 13 at 1:30. A slow-moving 1955 mystery-drama about undercover agents who go to great lengths to trap a wartime ring Frank Lovejoy and Mari Blanchard.

It Happened One Summer (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. A 1945 story of an Iowa farm family and Hammerstein Dick Haymes.

on 7 at 3:30. James Cagney, Doris Day and Gordon McCrae star in this 1950 musi-cal-comedy about a Broadway

OTTAWA (CP) posed American takeover of Acklands Ltd., a Winnipeg-based industrial firm, should be stalled until the govern-ment has time to study the proposal, New Democrat MP Ed Broadbent Oshawa-Whitby) told the Commons

Broadbent said the takeover by Genuine Parts Co. of Atlanta, Ga., is imminent.

Manpower Minister Robert Andras, speaking for Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie who is in Japan, said he will refer the case to Gillespie.

Broadbent said the United States company has offered $76.5 million for Acklands, which distributes automobile and industrial parts, and directors of the U.S. company have approved the offer of one Genuine Parts common share for 1.95 Acklands issued Nathan Starr, executive vice-president of Acklands, has described the offer as a good one and said he expects the company will recommend acceptance by Acklands' 2,000 shareholders.

Acklands is among the largest domestic companies in the wholesale parts distribution

Starr is one of the three major shareholders. The others are Leonard Wolinsky of Toronto, chairman, and Hyman Bessin of Ottawa, president.

Genuine Parts has about 15.6 million shares outstanding and its stock closed at $44.25 on the New York ex-change Monday. Its earnings for the first half of this year rose to $7.3 million, or 47 cents a share, from a restated $6.6 million or 42 cents a share a year earlier. Sales rose to $245.6 million from $218.6 million. Acklands, in its first half-o year ended May 31, earned $1.4 million, or 49 cents a share, excluding a tax credit of $984,000, which made final net $2.3 million, or 89 cents a share, on sales of $72.3 mil-

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND (CP) -Canada, Australia and New Zealand have drawn markedly closer in outlook recently according to several comments by public figures and the press in New Zealand.

Most statements date the greater community of outlook from the change of governments in Australia and New Zealand at the end of last when Labor regimes took office in both countries.

One almost immediate result was recognition of Peking by both Australia and New aland on a similar formula to that pioneered by Canada.

Australia and New Zealand immediately withdrew the small remaining armed forces still in Vietnam.

But even Canada's unhappy experiences in seeking to pomember of the International Commission of Control and Commission of Control and Supervision have brought to charges of attempting to some fellowfelling of the pit-falls of any implementation of Control and Ben Boyd, 37, pleaded guilty to charges of attempting to kill salmon by means other of any involvement in than angling. Indo China.

FORGE NEW LINK

The entry of Britain into the European Common Market and the decision to retain the remains of Commonwealth preference among other Commonwealth countries has likewise brought new interest in trading patterns across the "Increased trade is one of a number of interests New Zealanders have in common with Canadians," Prime Minister Norman E. Kirk said. "There are many others.

"Canada's prime minister, Trudeau, has always been a key supporter of co-operation within the Commonwealth.

"I believe that under their present leadership, our two countries see issues of foreign policy in very much the same light. We have much to do together and much to gain by maintaining the close links between us."

Press reports reinforced this impression by several references to identity of views at the Commonwealth conference in Ottawa.

New Zealand has decided against going the whole way in unification of armed forces on the Canadian pattern, but has used the Canadian experience in several measures taken for closer integration of

BOOST TOURISM

In the tourist sphere, a new campaign has recently been mounted by CP Air, in co-operation with several local travel agencies, for package ski tours from Australia and New Zealand to British Columbia during the southern summer and the height of the Canadian ski season. New Zealand skiers are showing considerable interest in this at Gander, Nfld., Moncton, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver; and in the terminal control units at Montreal and Toron-

The system is intended to expand, computerize and eventually automate air surveillance operations for air traffic controllers.

Government officials say they expect the first installation at Montreal will be ready to operate by December, 1976. The last system will be set up Vancouver by January, 1978.

Essentially, the new system will enable air traffic con-trollers to identify aircraft and where they are headed more easily.

Based on an experimental model now operating at Moncton, the radar screen will be able to name commercial air-craft, their flight numbers, speed and altitude and indicate the last four positions of the plane so that its direction can be plotted.

This is a considerable improvement over previous forms of radar which occasionally could not make out the difference between aircraft and birds. Other forms of radar also could not pick out specific aircraft and keep the identification on the screen, Mr. Dodd said.

This placed extra pressures on air traffic controllers. If many aircraft were in the region they had difficulty following one particular plane

EDMONTON (CP) — Less than three years ago, the Social Credit Party of Alberta held 54 of the 65 seats in the legislature and appeared firmly enmeshed in the impetus produced by 36 consecutive years in office.

Now they hold only 24 seats, have just lost an important by election and a well-regarded house lader. Sore of them admit regarded house leader. Some of them admit, privately, to utter confusion about their political future. There is public disagreement between some party MLAs and their leader Werner Schmidt, who replaced former premier Harry Strom last January.

There are reports that a few Social Credit MLAs, at least, are talking privately of perhaps a breakaway movement, a switch in party allegiance or possibly a move to sit as independents.

The party's latest public troubles came in mid-August when Jim Henderson, a sharp-tongued veteran of the legislature and former health minister, wrote a letter to his fellow party MLAs to announce his resignation as house leader.

Henderson, 46, a petroleum engineer representing Wetaskiwin-Leduc, gave no reasons for his resignation, saying only it was time for "a lot of soul searching."
He added his reasons will be disclosed to party members at a caucus. Then he left for a fishing holiday.

Henderson became house leader at the start of the spring session of the legislature because Schmidt did not have a seat in the legislature.
Schmidt, 40, who resigned as academic lege to become leader, tried in August to gain a seat. However, he finished second in the Calgary Foothills by election to a Progressive Conservative, Stewart McCrae.

The fact that he must still try to direct the party, official Alberta opposition, from outside the legislature floor is the source of the public disagreement.

Some Social Credit MLAs, particularly those from the Calgary area, are adamant that a house leader to succeed Henderson must be sicked by elected party members in the legislature.

"When your leader of the party is out of the house... the proper thing for him to do is to allow the elected members to pick the leader of the house." said Roy Wilson, member for Calgary-Bow.

"You have to have confidence in your house leader or you can't function as an experience."

party leader to pick a house leader.

A party source said there is a possibility of the MLAs who have been unhappy with Schmidt's performance may break away or at least sit as independents.

"It's too early to tell just what will happen. But we're sure trying to give Premier Lougheed everything on a silver platter." Another MLA said "The time has come Speaker, 37, one-time social development minister, has said he is not in a position to accept anything "but I'll do anything I can to help Schmidt and the Social Credit Party."

The front bencher from Little Bow often remains out of the rough and tumble of legislature debate but is considered an effective opposition member.

Among the other front benchers that Schmidt has to choose from is Robert Clark, the party leader's chief opponent in the battle for the leadership last January

OTTAWA (CP) - The government's 60-day grace period for immigrant registration has attracted more underground aliens in Ontario than in all other regions of the country combined.

In all, 14,568 aliens have registered with immigration officials across the country. Counting their dependants both in Canada and living abroad, they represent a total of 25,530 potential new immigrants to Canada.

An immigration department spokesman said a total of 15,629 potential landed immigrants were registered with immigration officials in Ontario alone. This included 7,147 heads-of-family, 4,871 of their dependants living in Canada and another 3,611 who are currently living outside the country.

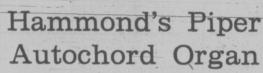

There are four mobile vans operating in Ontario from church parking lots, shopping plazas and on street corners.

Quebec is in second place with a total of 4,101 potential landed immigrants registered. Some 3,254 aliens and their families have registered in the Prairies, 1,835 in British Columbia and 711 in the Atlantic provinces.

Energy Crisis EATON'S Puts Weapon In Arab Hands

The Manchester Guardian

BEIRUT - There is nothing new about the so-called "oil weapon." The Arabs have attempted to use it at least three times in their struggle against Israel, in 1948, 1956 and 1967, and they failed every time.

It is the weapon they invoke when they are getting nowhere with real weapons. That is why Egypt, the Arab world's principal military power, is its most ardent advocate.

Unable to dislodge Israel from Sinel in a shooting war, President Ansar Sadat has no choice but to seek Arab help in waging an economic war.

The theory of it is simple.

Israel is a protege of the United States; it could not stay in the occupied territories without American encouragement and support; threaten America's interests in the Arab world and it will quickly forsake its protege, which will withdraw from the occupied territories. from the occupied territories.

As Mohammed Heikal, editor of Cairo's Al-Ahram newspaper, put it recently, it would be wrong "to take the angry and demented American bull by the horns." The bull should be "killed" in the Arab region, certainly, but it should be done in the bullfighter's way, by "draining its blood."

The actual "fighting," Heikal said, was only a part of the struggle that might take place across the Suez Canal, but the real "war" should take place in the oil-rich regions of the Persian Gulf.

Since the Arabs have failed in wielding this weapon so often in the past, it might well be asked why they should succeed in future. Of course, they might fail again. But it would be foolhardy to assume that they will. What is certain is that, now and for several years to come, their chances of making it work are very much greater than they have ever

There are two reasons for this, one economic, the other

It is the economic realities of the so-callel "energy crisis" which have put the weapon in the Arabs' hands. By the end of this year "free world" demand, rising so much faster than the experts foresaw, will reach 50 million barrels a day; output may just top 51 million barrels per day — if all

By 1980, according to a U.S. state department estimate, demand may reach 85 million barrels a day—Europe 28 million, America 24 million, Japan 14 million and the rest 19 million. In the next 10 years almost as much oil will be consumed as in the previous hundred.

The United States, with 6 per cent of the world's popular profligately devouring 33 per cent of its energy, has been the first to feel the pinch.

It is in the great oil-producing regions of the Middle East and North Africa that 60 per cent of proven "free world" reserves are located, from there that the great bulk of anticipated increase in demand will have to be met

About one-seventh of the 350,000 million barrels belongs to non-Arab, pro-western Iran; The rest-is Arab about 150,000 million barrels of it in Saudi Arabia alone.

Since the actual reserves of at least two Arab countries, Saudi Arabia and Iraq, could well be two or even three times the proven ones, the Arab share is really very much higher.

Inevitably the energy crisis has brought a fundamental shift in the balance of power from the consumer to the producer. Those experts who in the 1960's predicted a steady or even a precipitous fall in the price of Middle East oil have been proved startingly wrong. Prices are going up by leaps Libya's Colonel Moammar Qaddafi was the first to seize the initiative in October, 1970. Now he is at it again.

Europe and Japan can view this situation with more equanimity than the United States. Their heavy and long-standing dependence on Middle East and North African oil cannot significantly increase. Until very recently the United States enjoyed a happy self-sufficiency of oil supplies. In 1967 the last time the Arabs tried to use the oil weapon, it was importing a more 30 000 happels a day from the Middle East porting a mere 300,000 barrels a day from the Middle East and North Africa. Now it has suddenly learned that by 1980 it may be importing as much 15 million barrels a day, of which 11 million may come from the Middle East and North Africa.

Thus economic realities have put the weapon in the Arabs hands, but political ones — what the Arabs regard as America's blindly uncritical support of Israel — have given them the incentive to use it.

Of course, there is no doubt that, without Israel, the Arab producers would be exploiting the "energy crisis" to drive as hard a bargain as possible. That is why Iran, at odds with the Arabs on so much else, joins them on the oil front. Without Israel, on the other hand, the Arabs would have little motive for dooing any more than drive this hard bargain.

It adds up to a rich historical irony. There are many arguments which the Zionists and their western sympathizers have used to enlist international support for their cause.

When, during the First World War, they sought the patronage of Britain, the strategic argument took the form one would expect: A friendly Jewish community in Palestine would help secure British control over the Suez Canal, lifeline with the U.S. having taken Britain's place as Israel's patron, the strategic argument maintains that Israel is an integral part of the western security system.

trael's victory in the western security system.

(trael's victory in the June, 1967, war lent weight to the argument. Israelis became increasingly inclined, not merely to appeal to America's conscience, but to state plainly what they thought American should do for its own good. Thus, in 1967, Teddy Kollek, the mayor of Jerusalem, told American television/viewers the U.S. supported Israel "only because it is in your self-interest to do so and not because you are doing to say favore"

With the growth of Soviet influence in the Middle East, Israel was made out to be manning the frontiers of the free world against communism. Soviet influence has recently waned somewhat; naturally, according to the strategic ar-waned somewhat; naturally, according to the strategic argument, it was American-Israeli firmness that did it.

But now, with Arab oil assuming such immense importance, it is clear that if the strategic argument has any validity at all, this "bastion-Israel" should achieve a veritable apotheosis and perform for the western world the supreme service of keeping the oil flowing.

Apparently such ideas are in the air, U.S. Senator J. William Fulbright was referring to them when he expressed his fears that, as a result of the energy crisis, the U.S. might take over the oil fields via its "militarily potent surrogates," Israel and Iran..."

Israel and Iran..."

Unfortunately, the strategic argument, plausible though it may have looked in the very different circumstances of Britain's imperial heyday, has never had a real validity.

In fact, during Britain's rule in Palestine, it was only when strategic factors really came into play, only when, on the eye of the Second World War, Iraqi oil fields had to be lest cut of Corwan hands at all costs, only then did Britain. kept out of German hands at all costs — only then did Britain act as if it valued the good will of the Arabs more than the Zionists. It issued the famous 1939 white paper on Palestine, and from that moment on the Zionists became a distinctly unfriendly community in Palestine, a strategic liability, not an asset, to the benefactor without whom most of them would never have reached Palestine in the first place.

The U.S. took Britain's place as Israel patron; it saw to the birth and has cherished it ever since. But, like a harassed Britain before it, will the U.S. eventually come to see Israel as a strategic liability, too? At present it does not look like it. But if, in the coming years, or even months, it does not do so it never will.

ROME, Maine (UPI) - A six-foot 200-pound teen-ager lifted a 3,000-pound tractor with his bare hands Tuesday to free a trapped farm worker.

Kennebec County investigator Leo Bazinet said Arthur Hinkley, 18, heard the screams of Lloyd Bachelder, also 18, who was pinned in the seat of the vehicle when it tipped over while Bachelder was attempting to lift a funked car.

Hinkley, who was working on the Bachelder farm, some-how lifted the tractor enough for Bachelder to wriggle out. He was taken to a Waterville hospital where he was reported in good condition today with a fractured hip and internal inju-

Inlet Probe Set

The largest international oceanographic experiment of its kind is to be carried out over a 10-year period at a cost of $10 million in Saanich Inlet.

Prof. T. R. Parsons of the University of British Columbia's institute of oceanography announced today that, al-though the project will be in full swing early in 1974, pre-liminary testing is already taking place.

The project, aimed at studying the effects of low levels of pollution on marine life, was stalled earlier this year when the federal department of fisheries insisted on studying the program before permitting a go-ahead.

Parsons, spokesman for the Controlled Ecosystem Pollus tion Experiment, explained today "the major imput of funds" came from the Na-tional Science Foundation of Washington, D.C.

Taking part in the program will be UBC, the Skidaway Oceanographic Institute of the University of Georgia, the Marine Laboratory of Aberdeen in Scotland, the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution of Massachusetts, the tion of Massachusetts, the Scripps Institution of Oceanography in California and the University of Miami.

At a press conference today models of the water "labora-tories" or, what Parsons "greenhouses"

Times News Services

SANTIAGO, Chile - Fighting broke out today between soldiers and factory workers opposing the military coup which ousted President Salvador Allende on Tuesday.

First unofficial estimates said as many as 1,000 persons may have been killed since the bloody coup started 24 hours ago. There were no official casualty figures given by the military junta which seized power and clamped a state of siege on the country, imposed a nation-wide curfew, de-clared martial law, instituted press censorship and disband ed the Congress. that Allende committed suicide during the coup.

A communique said he took his life at 2 p.m. Tuesday as tanks closed in on the presidential palace. Funeral services were held today in the presence of his family and burial was in a local cemetery, the communique said.

Reports from the country remain sketchy due to difficulties in getting news out. President Luis Echeverria

OTTAWA — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday that with Canada experiencing serious inflation and mounting unemployment there is "no way" his party would agree to an adjourn-

Servants' Pension Bill To House

OTTAWA (CP) - A government bill to raise public servants' pensions in line with quick approval Tuesday by the Commons welfare com-mittee, and returned to the House for final passage.

Key clauses of the bill would remove the two-percent ceiling now imposed on public service pensions for their yearly cost-of-living increases. Under the legislation, the pensoions would rise at a rate equal to the actual cost of living.

The House already has The House already has passed a bill raising old age security pensions and providing for their increase quarterly with the cost of living.

Treasury board officials said the latest bill would benefit the benefit of the said to be sa efit about 100,000 former pub-lic servants next year if implemented Jan. 1 as expected.

It would raise the total pay ments next year by $25 million to about $300,000.

The bill would also raise employees' and the government's contributions to the pension account to one per cent of earnings. But that change would not take place—until 1977. Contributions now are .5 per cent of earnings.

CHICAGO (AP) -The United States government estimated record production of soybeans and grains this year and commodities on the Board of Trade closed with limit declines today.

Soybeans, meal and oil posted limit declines on the opening. Then until the close, nearby options remained locked at the bottom but there some limited trade in distant options.

Despite the bearish figures, wheat futures gained some 15 cents early and corn and oats

In the last hour, new selling developed and as stop-loss selling set in prices touched limits in wheat, corn and oats and held at those levels to the final bell.

At the close, soybeans were 20 to 23 cents a bushel lower, September 6.40; wheat was 20 cents lower, September 5.01; corn was 2¼ to 10 lower, September 2.41½ and oats were 4½ to six lower, September

Record Housing Starts

OTTAWA (CP) - Housing starts continued at a high level in August, indicating total starts for 1973 could reach a record 260,000 units, says the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

Actual starts in urban areas in August totalled 19,924, up four per cent from the August, 1972, figure of 19,082, the CMHC said in a news re-lease today.

In the first eight months of the year, acutal urban starts amounted to 134,563, an increase of three per cent from the 130,470 total for the same carried lact trees.

A Premier and Friend In Their Morning Romp

Just about the last place in the world that you'd want to be, if you are ever so slightly introverted or a man who normally avoids the human race until after lunch, is Room 178 of the Empress Hotel at 8:30 a.m. when Mr. Barrett meets Mr.

We were there at that terrible hour earlier this week when the premier submitted to one of his periodic encounters with Jack Webster, the king of the hot-line radio inquisitors. The experience was, as expected, exhausting. At an hour when decent people are either in bed or staring sightlessly into space awaiting doom, both Barrett and Webster ooze vitality, bounce and joi de vivre in a truly disgusting manner.

The purpose of our expedition, though it hardly seems to have been worth the effort in retrospect, was to see how Premier Barrett was bearing up on the eve, as the saying goes, of the autumn sitting of the legislature.

goes, of the autumn sitting of the legislature.

The answer is that, measured on any meter that registered energy, insouciance, assurance, high spirits and good humor, Mr. Barrett would get nine points in a possible 10. When we mumbled a question about his health (we mumble a lot before noon) the premier replied, "I feel great, fantastic!" There was no reason to doubt this in the ensuing 90 minutes.

Webster described this particular interview as "the ten thousandth and one broadcast with Davey" which is an exagthousandth and one broadcast with Davey which is an exag-geration, but they've been meeting this way at microphones for at least a dozen years. Webster likes to recall that on their very first interview he remarked, incredulously, "So this is the man who might just one day be premier!" Now he says: "Of course, it was a preposterous idea." And the premier, smiling a quixotic smile, says: "I never doubted

Both men are highly professional at the microphones and, indeed, alike in many ways. Both have distinctly pear-shaped figures which require occasional diets. Now, sweeping into the small Empress room with three minutes to go before air the Premier doffs his blue-and-white checked sports jacker, steps out of his black loafers and enjoys a moment of one-upmanship.

He has invested in a book called "Dr. Atkins" Diet Revolution - The High Calorie Way To Stay Thin Forever, has lost ax pounds in six days and is feeling, if not looking,

Webster, currently over-weight, charged up for his first question and with two packs of cigarettes at the ready beside him, looks at the premier dourly and gives his engineer a voice level with the words, "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party."

"That's for sure," Barrett grins, totally relaxed, small stockinged feet up on an extra chair, pouring himself a sugar-less cream-less coffee. The guest, not nearly so nonchalent, soon realizes that he is witness to two separate shows.

The first, in those periods when Barrett and Webster are actually on the air, is pure Marshall McLuhan. The medium is the message. It is largely a personality exercise with the predictable role-playing—Webster the mildly apoplectic, abrasive, well-informed questioner, Barrett gravely plausible, quiet-mannered, deftly turning aside Webster's ceneralizations ("That's nonsense, lack just nonsense.")

generalizations. ("That's nonsense, Jack, just nonsense.")
It is when the microphones are dead during the commercial and news breaks that the warmth and bantering humor of the two men makes the more entertaining show. I doubt if there's been such a rapport betwen public figures since Eko and Iko, Barnum and Bailey's sheep-headed twins from Ecuador. Webster, whose respect and admiration for a man is measured in the range and depth of his insults, leaves no doubt that he considers Barrett worthy of his worst.

"God, Davey, if you fell into a barrel of it you'd come out smelling of violets," he roars. "Sometimes I wonder what you eat for breakfast on the Sometimes I wonder what you eat for breaklast on the boat coming over here," says the Premier. "Must you be so nasty? Why is it necessary for you to hate, Jack? Let's not get all worked up. Let's have peace and love around here."

Webster: "I'm nothing if not vicious. But you're nice, Davey, You're so nice I don't even think of you as a Jew."

The premier shakes with laughter. Still laughing, he turns to the guest. turns to the guest.

You see how he treats me? Little, chubby me?" he asks. "You should have seen him with my predecessor. Oh, the bowing and the scraping and the kissing of the ring. It was something to see, I'll tell you."

Now it is Webster's turn to be broken up. They laugh together until the exact moment when the microphones are alive again. Then it's back to business.

It is only when the 90 minutes are over — certainly the liveliest 90 minutes in radio - that there is a moment of introspection. "God, what a grind this is," Webster groans, leaning back, wringing wet from his exertions. "I wonder if I'll ever

The premier, getting back into his shoes and jacket, listens sympathetically. "I guess we all have higher aspirations," he says. "I've some plans, myself, that I hope to realize one day. Being premier is just an interruption in my life."

The guest tip-toed away, leaving them there—the 43-year-old first citizen of the province with a yearly income of $52,000, the 55-year-old interviewer with an income of $130,000 and wondered if there were ever two men who so thoroughly enjoyed making it.

Computers May Assess Teachers

Greater Victoria school board trustee Dr. Philip Ney said today computers could be involved in future evaluations of teacher effectiveness.

There could soon come a point where the education process is evaluated in cold, critical data indicating how a teacher's effectiveness relates to his peers.

Chile Political Theory Died in Confrontation

By LEWIS H. DIUGUID Assistant Foreign Editor of The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - During a decade of profound shifts in government, until now always by constitutional means, Chile has proved itself the most intensely political nation of the Western Hemisphere.

Whatever problems the quite a few, were considered susceptible to political solutions. The parties took up positions and put the issues to the voters in the next election.

Chileans were thus forever voting. The fever of campaign scarcely diminished in tween. In Santiago, even the sewing circles are ideological. children elect May queens along party lines.

The lauguage of debate was often strident, but the political game always was played peacefully, and according to the constitution. Only the mili-tary, and some of the peasantry, failed to participate

Lately, though, problems persisted even after a majority, or at least a clear plurali-ty, "solved" them by voting one way or the other in congress.

Change took a radical turn. A mildly reformist govern-ment gave way in 1964 to the

With Allende, Chile dared to try the approach to economic and social organization that had fascinated academic and parlor Marxists around the hemisphere for years.

Only in Chile were Marxist parties viable, dynamic political forces. The Communists participated briefly in a government in the '40s. They had a reputation for lovalty to Soviet dogma, and a talent for

The socialist party, of which Allende was a founder in 1933, often took positions far to the left of the Communists. Though Allende's wing of the faction-ridden party favored a constitutional road to socialism, another favored arming the militants for a dicta-torship of the proletariat.

Other parties in Allend six-member coalition, whether professedly Marxist or not, accepted for the 1970 election such planks as: nationalization of foreign copper and other mineral holdings, re-placement of the bicameral congress with a "people's as-sembly" including labor union representation, sweeping re-distribution of income, and institution of expensive social welfare programs.

The largest single party, the Democrats, begun programs nearly as broad between 1964 and 1970: an agrarian reform to elimi nate big land holdings, a start at state takeover of the key copper sector that was then totally foreign-owned, formation of pressure groups among mothers and slumdwellers, organization of the peasants

But the absolute majority that voted Frei into office soon showed-in byelectionsa resurging discontent. For the fateful 1970 presidential election, the party chose onetime Ambassador to Washington Radomior Tomic as its condidate.

Tomic's platform was cast far to the left of Rei's, to the point that it closely resembled that of Allende' Conservatives who often referred to Frei as "Chile's Kerensky" Tomic unacceptable

Polarization of the once astonishingly diverse electorate The conservative National Party, that had virtually disappeared, supported again former president Jorge Allesandri. He came within two percentage points of defeating Allende in the three-

The question arose, of enough Chileans whether work together long enough hours to make the economy operate-even if the ever more elusive goal of political consensus were

Servants' Pension Bill To House

OTTAWA (CP) A government bill to raise public servants' pensions in line with living-cost increases won living-cost increases won quick approval Tuesday by the Commons welfare committee, and returned to the House for final passage.

Key clauses of the bill would remove the two-percent ceiling now imposed on public service pensions for their yearly cost-of-living increases. Under the legislation, the pensions would rise at a rate equal to the actual cost of living.

of living.

The House already has passed a bill raising old age passed a bill raising old age security pensions and provid-ing for their increase quarter-ly with the cost of living. Treasury board officials said the latest bill would ben-off characteristics.

said the latest bill would ben-efit about 100,000 former pub-lic servants next year if im-plemented Jan. 1 as expected. It would raise the total pay-ments next year by $25 mil-lion, to about $300,000. The bill would also raise employees' and the govern-ment's contributions to the pension account to one per cent of earnings. But that change would not take place until 1977. Contributions now are .5 per cent of earnings.

lifted a 3,000-pound tractor with his bare hands Tuesday to free a trapped farm worker.

Kennebec County investigator Leo Bazinet said Arthur Hinkley, 18, heard the screams of Lloyd Bachelder, also 18, who was pinned in the seat of the vehicle when it tipped over while Bachelder was attempting to lift a junked car.

Hinkley, who was working on the Bachelder farm, somehow lifted the tractor enough for Bachelder to wriggle out.

He was taken to a Waterville hospital where he was reported in good condition today with a fractured hip and internal inju-

Tories Won't Adjourn

OTTAWA

OTTAWA — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday that with Canada experiencing serious inflationand mounting unemployment there is "no way" his party would agree to an adjournment of Parliament this week. There have been "feelers" put out by government repre-sentatives to determine if the official opposition and the New Democratic and Social Credit parties would go along with a motion to adjourn Thursday. The party House leaders met today to consider the cuestion

The latest consumer price index comes out Thursday and the Conservatives may be preparing a further attack on government anti-inflation efforts. A jump in the Index could support their call for an immediate increase in family allowances to an average per child payment of $20 a month.

The minority Liberal government plans to make the average allowance a taxable $20, but not until Jan. 1. The bill before the House would raise allowances, now monthly average of $7.21 child, to a flat non-taxable $12

SALMON ARM - Residents of this largely resort town of about 2,000 watched helplessly today as wind swept fire down on homes and farms.

The fire began Tuesday afternoon when a slash burning authorized by the provincial forestry department was whipped out of control by winds which gusted to more than 50 m.p.h.

ficial said the logging firm Federated Co-Operatives had been authorized to start the debris left after logging.

No one knows exactly how many homes have been de-stroyed but at least 15 have been razed by the fire and district fire chief Graham Redman said there could be "as many as 30."

No injuries have been reported although RCMP, three local fire departments, forestry workers and volunteers seemed at a loss to know what to do about the blaze.

"We're just waiting it out w," Redman said. "The wind is so strong that-no one can get near it. We're just trying to keep it from spread-

Deputy Forestry Minister J. S. Stokes said his department has not received all the details of the fire but forestry officials are on their way to Salmon Arm to investigate the incident.
"They've been sent there to do three things," Stokes said.

"To look after those people who have been displaced, to see every effort is being made to protect private property and put the fire out and to investigate the whole thing. Asked if slash burning is allowed in the area at this time of year, Stokes said permission is based on a number of factors and he did not kno the circumstances of this

The last search for oil on Vancouver Island took place in 1910, when Western Canadian Oil Prospecting Co. Ltd. put down a well at Muir Creek, near Sooke.

After getting down 1,560 feet and no show, the well was abandoned in 1913. While there has been no activity on the Island since then, the major oil companies have been busy in offshore waters, using seismographs.

Offshore drilling was carried out by Shell in 1968 and 1969 with no success and the program abandoned. In 1972 several companies carried out a busy seismographic program off the west coast of Vancouver Island but did not report the results.

Oil companies are optimistic about the chances of finding oil in Georgia Strait but the Social Credit and New Democratic Party governments have indicated they are not interested in a strait drilling program
